

CHAISTY JOINER

Hi everyone! My name is Chaisty Joiner, and I am a proud Atlanta native and Gordon State College graduate. I earned my Associate Degree in Early Childhood Education in 2015 and my Bachelor's Degree in Human Services in 2017. My time at Gordon State played a significant role in shaping the person, leader, and professional I am today.

During my time at Gordon, I had the opportunity to serve as Student Government Association President, participate in several student organizations, and become actively involved in Residence Life. These experiences allowed me to develop my leadership skills, build meaningful relationships, and gain a deeper appreciation for community, service, and student engagement. Gordon was more than just a place where I earned my degrees—it was a community that helped prepare me for my future.

Resident Director

Professionally, I have spent the past several years with the Georgia Division of Child Support Services. I began my career working directly with families and eventually transitioned into a leadership role, serving as a Multi-Unit Supervisor. In this role, I have had the opportunity to lead teams, support families, develop community partnerships, and help identify solutions for individuals and families navigating challenging circumstances.

At the heart of my professional and personal journey is my passion for people. I value supporting others through difficult situations, connecting them with resources, finding solutions, and ensuring they feel heard, valued, and supported. I believe meaningful leadership begins with listening, building relationships, and creating opportunities for others to succeed.
